The Midcoast Stewards offers a variety of opportunities for volunteer service (working with groups or alone, outdoors or indoors, dealing with students or mixed age groups, etc.). Participants may also choose to design their own volunteer projects. Keeping this in mind . . .

What type of volunteer service are you interested in?

Do you have any skills that would be particularly useful to a conservation organization?

Comments:

The Midcoast Stewards are volunteers who learn about the natural and cultural elements that shape the midcoast region and then turn this awareness into action. Thirty hours of community service is required of all stewards.
