Heating Oil Prices Up

Augusta--- The Governor’s Office of Energy Independence and Security (OEIS) conducted it’s off season oil survey and has found that the current statewide average cash price for No. 2 heating oil to be at $2.48 per gallon up 10 cents from last week.

“Crude oil prices have been rising over the last two weeks as optimism in the equities markets and increasing tensions in Nigeria pulled markets upward against the tide of market fundamentals where above normal inventories and low demand continue to point toward lower prices” says OEIS Director John Kerry. “All Maine consumers should prepare for next winter’s heating season today by taking steps to weatherize their homes and carefully planning a budget.”

As of October 19th, 2009
