Subject: Notice of data breach. Please read this entire letter.

Dear <Name>,

We are writing to notify you about a data-security incident that may have affected the credit card (or other payment card) you used when making a purchase on our website, BobsRedMill.com (<https://www.bobsredmill.com/>).

This letter contains important information about what happened, including steps you should take to reduce the risk that any fraudulent transactions are completed with your card. The privacy and security of our customers' information is important to us, and we apologize for the concern and inconvenience this incident may cause you.

What happened?

We recently learned that, between February 23 and March 1, 2022, malicious software was used to "scrape" purchase-related information entered into our website. This information typically goes directly (and via secure protocols) to our payment processor – but the scraping software is intended to interfere with that. Immediately upon learning of the issue, we began an investigation and took steps to fix the problem. We have isolated and removed the malicious software such that website purchases are again secure.

Initially, we had no evidence that any of the information was acquired (e.g., downloaded or exfiltrated from the website). Nor did we have any indication that the information had been used in any way – such as to make fraudulent purchases. But we continued to look into the incident. On March 22, we received a call from a customer who indicated that they incurred a fraudulent charge. We received a number of similar reports this month. We do not know if these fraudulent charges are related to our website incident, but it now appears possible that payment-card (and other) information may have been acquired. We are therefore providing you with this notice so you can take steps to protect yourself.

What information was involved?

The scraping software appears to have impacted data entered when customers made purchases from our website. The following information therefore appears to have been involved: payment-card number, expiration date, CVV number, billing address and shipping address, including name and street address, e-mail address, phone number, and purchase amount.

We believe that this incident was limited to our website and limited to the period from February 23 - March 1, 2022. We do not believe any of our physical/in-person point-of-sale terminals have been impacted, or that purchases made outside the February 23-March 1 window have been impacted. There is also no information to indicate that Social Security numbers, driver's license numbers or other government-issued ID numbers, dates of birth, or other sensitive personal information or online account credentials have been compromised. As a result, we believe this incident presents a low risk of identity theft.

If you are receiving this letter, it is because we believe your purchase-related information may have been among the data impacted by the malicious software between February 23 and March 1.

What we are doing

As an organization, we are committed to ensuring the security of our customers' personal information. The steps we have taken to address this incident include:

- When we first learned of this incident, we immediately began an investigation and took steps to fix the problem – such as identifying, isolating, and removing the malicious software.
- We immediately notified, and will work with, our payment processor to reduce the likelihood of this type of incident happening again.
- We immediately notified the payment-card brands we work with (American Express, Discover, Mastercard, and Visa) and will work with them to reduce the likelihood of this type of incident happening again.
- We already devote significant resources to data security, including the security of payment systems.
- We will learn from this incident and use the information uncovered during our investigation to further bolster our data security and incident-response processes.

Please note that this letter was not delayed because of a law-enforcement investigation.

What you can do

Monitor your payment-card accounts and report any unauthorized transactions or other suspicious activity to the applicable card brand or card issuer.

You should be vigilant and regularly review and monitor your payment-card account statements and immediately report any suspicious activity to the applicable card brand or card issuer.

Monitor your credit reports.

As with your payment-card account statements, you should regularly review your credit reports and report any suspicious activity or inaccurate information to the applicable credit-reporting agency and the company that furnished the suspicious or inaccurate information. You have the right to obtain a copy of your credit report for free once a year from one of the national credit-reporting agencies.

You may obtain your free copy of your credit report online at www.annualcreditreport.com, by calling toll-free 877-322-8228, or by mailing an Annual Credit Report Request Form (available at www.annualcreditreport.com) to:

Annual Credit Report Request Service, P.O. Box 105281, Atlanta, GA, 30348-5281.

You may purchase additional credit reports by contacting one or more of the three following national credit-reporting agencies:

Equifax: P.O. Box 740241, Atlanta, Georgia 30374-0241, 800-685-1111, www.equifax.com

Experian: P.O. Box 9532, Allen, TX 75013, 888-397-3742, www.experian.com

TransUnion: P.O. Box 1000, Chester, PA 19022, 800-888-4213, www.transunion.com

You may also obtain information regarding fraud alerts and security freezes from the foregoing credit-reporting agencies and the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC").

Report any suspicion of identity theft to regulators.

If you ever suspect that you are the victim of identity theft, please report that to the proper law enforcement authorities, including local law enforcement, your state's attorney general, and/or the FTC. You may contact the FTC or your state's regulatory authority to obtain additional information about avoiding identity theft.

ENCLOSURE – STATE-SPECIFIC INFORMATION

District of Columbia Residents. Under federal law (15 U.S.C. § 1681c-1), you have the right to obtain a credit freeze – also known as a security freeze – on your credit file. There is no charge for a credit freeze (or for temporarily lifting or permanently removing the freeze). To request a security freeze, you must contact each of the credit-reporting agencies listed in the body of our letter. You should be prepared to provide the following information in connection with your credit-freeze request:

1. Your full name (including middle initial as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.), Social Security number, and date of birth;
2. If you have moved in the past five years, the addresses where you have lived over the previous five years;
3. Proof of current address, such as a current utility bill, telephone bill, rental agreement, or deed;
4. A legible photocopy of a government-issued ID card;
5. Social Security card, pay stub, or Form W-2; and
6. If you are a victim of identity theft, a copy of the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law-enforcement agency concerning the theft.

You can obtain more information about fraud alerts, credit freezes, and preventing identity theft by contacting the FTC at the information listed in the body of our letter, visiting the FTC's website at <https://consumer.ftc.gov/articles/what-know-about-credit-freezes-fraud-alerts>, contacting one of the credit-reporting agencies listed in the body of our letter, or contacting the Office of the Attorney General for the District of Columbia ("AGDC").

The AGDC can be reached at the following:

<https://oag.dc.gov/consumer-protection/consumer-alert-identity-theft>, 202-727-3400, 400 6th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20001.

Maryland Residents. The Maryland Attorney General ("MAG") can be reached at the following: <https://www.marylandattorneygeneral.gov/pages/identitytheft/default.aspx>, 1-888-743-0023, 200 St. Paul Place, 25th Floor, Baltimore, MD 21202.

In addition to the FTC, you can obtain information from the MAG regarding steps you can take to prevent identity theft.

New Mexico Residents. Under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act ("FCRA"), you have several rights – including the following:

1. You must be told if information in your file has been used against you;
2. You have the right to know what is in your file;
3. You have the right to ask for a credit score;
4. You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information;
5. Consumer-reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information;
6. Consumer-reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information;
7. Access to your file is limited;
8. You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers;
9. You may limit "prescreened" offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report;
10. You have the right to obtain a security freeze, or place a fraud alert, on your credit report;
11. You may seek damages from violators; and
12. Identity-theft victims and active-duty military personnel have additional rights.

Additional information regarding your rights under the FCRA can be found here: <https://www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore/>.

North Carolina Residents. The North Carolina Attorney General's Office ("NCAG") can be reached at the following:

<https://ncdoj.gov/protecting-consumers/protecting-your-identity/>, 1-877-5-NO-SCAM, and 9001 Mail Service Center, Raleigh, NC 27699-9001.

In addition to the FTC, you can obtain information from the NCAG regarding steps you can take to prevent identity theft.

Rhode Island Residents. You have the right to file a police report if you ever experience identity theft or fraud. If you file a police report, or if a police report is filed regarding this incident, you have a right to obtain a copy of that report.

You also have the right to request a credit freeze – also known as a security freeze – as outlined under the "District of Columbia Residents" section above.

The Rhode Island Attorney General can be contacted at:

www.riag.ri.gov, 401-274-4400, 150 South Main Street, Providence, RI 02903.

West Virginia Residents. For information regarding how to place a credit freeze – also known as a security freeze – see the information outlined in the "District of Columbia Residents" section above. You may also be eligible for a fraud alert. There are two types of fraud alerts that you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud: an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least 90 days. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft with the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by calling any of the three credit-reporting agencies listed in the body of our letter. There is no charge for a fraud alert.
