The investigation into this matter is ongoing, and this notice will be supplemented with any new significant facts learned subsequent to its submission. By providing this notice, WPAS does not waive any rights or defenses regarding the applicability of Maine law, the applicability of the Maine data event notification statute, or personal jurisdiction.

Nature of the Data Event

On July 21, 2021, WPAS discovered that portions of its computer network were infected with malware that encrypted certain systems. WPAS promptly launched a comprehensive investigation into the nature and scope of the activity and implemented immediate measures to contain the incident. On or about July 28, 2021, the investigation confirmed that certain folders may have been accessed or removed from WPAS’s network; however, the investigation could not definitely confirm what information was accessed or removed. Therefore, WPAS undertook a lengthy, time-intensive, and thorough review of the affected folders to identify the information that was potentially impacted and to whom it related. The initial review completed on or around December 7, 2021, at which time WPAS confirmed the impacted data included information relating to certain individuals. WPAS continued to work through December 20, 2021 to confirm the accuracy of the impacted data and address information for impacted individuals, and to identify the applicable WPAS clients so it could provide accurate notice to individuals and business partners.

While the information is not the same for each affected individual, the potentially impacted information includes name, address, and Social Security number.

Notice to Maine Resident

On or about January 3, 2022, WPAS began providing written notice of this incident to data owners. Subsequently, on or about February 18, 2022, after receiving additional information from clients, WPAS began providing written notice of this incident to affected individuals, which includes one (1) Maine resident. Written notice is being provided in substantially the same form as the letter attached here as Exhibit A. WPAS also posted notice of this incident on its website, a copy of which is attached here as Exhibit B. This notice may be supplemented if it is determined a significant number of additional Maine residents will receive notice and at the request of clients.

Other Steps Taken and To Be Taken

Upon discovering the event, WPAS promptly investigated and mitigated potential harm from this incident. WPAS notified the Federal Bureau of Investigation and has been cooperating with the investigation. WPAS worked quickly to confirm what information was impacted, and to which WPAS clients the information belonged so they could be notified. WPAS continues to assess the security of WPAS systems and to enhance existing policies and procedures, including implementing additional safeguards intended to safeguard information and to reduce the likelihood of similar events. WPAS is also working with its business partners to notify impacted individuals.

Although WPAS is not aware of any fraudulent misuse of information from this incident, it is providing access to credit monitoring services for twelve (12) months, through Kroll, to individuals whose personal information was potentially affected by this incident, at no cost to these individuals. Additionally, WPAS is providing impacted individuals with guidance on how to protect against identity theft and fraud. Monitor Your Accounts

Under U.S. law, a consumer is entitled to one free credit report annually from each of the three major credit reporting bureaus, Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. To order your free credit report, visit www.annualcreditreport.com or call, toll-free, 1-877-322-8228. You may also directly contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below to request a free copy of your credit report.

Consumers have the right to place an initial or extended “fraud alert” on a credit file at no cost. An initial fraud alert is a 1-year alert that is placed on a consumer’s credit file. Upon seeing a fraud alert display on a consumer’s credit file, a business is required to take steps to verify the consumer’s identity before extending new credit. If you are a victim of identity theft, you are entitled to an extended fraud alert, which is a fraud alert lasting seven years. Should you wish to place a fraud alert, please contact any one of the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below.

As an alternative to a fraud alert, consumers have the right to place a “credit freeze” on a credit report, which will prohibit a credit bureau from releasing information in the credit report without the consumer’s express authorization. The credit freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a credit freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or any other account involving the extension of credit. Pursuant to federal law, you cannot be charged to place or lift a credit freeze on your credit report. To request a security freeze, you will need to provide the following information:

1. Full name (including middle initial as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.);
2. Social Security number;
3. Date of birth;
4. Addresses for the prior two to five years;
5. Proof of current address, such as a current utility bill or telephone bill;
6. A legible photocopy of a government-issued identification card (state driver’s license or ID card, etc.); and
7. A copy of either the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law enforcement agency concerning identity theft if you are a victim of identity theft.
