

April 15, 2022

Dear [REDACTED],

I am writing to inform you that we, Lewis and Clark Community College (“Lewis and Clark” or “we”) recently experienced a data incident (“Incident”) which potentially involved your personal information (“Information”). This letter provides you with information about this Incident. Additionally, although we are unaware of any misuse of your Information, as a precaution we also provide steps you can take to protect your Information.

What Happened?

In November 2021, Lewis and Clark Community College experienced a ransomware Incident that impacted a limited number of our devices and systems. Out of an abundance of caution, we proactively took some of our systems offline. Upon becoming aware of the Incident, we immediately investigated the matter and took measures to address and contain the Incident, including changing passwords and retaining national privacy and security experts. At the conclusion of our investigation in March 2022, it was determined that for a period of time in November, an unauthorized actor obtained access to our systems, seemingly for the sole purpose of encrypting certain data with ransomware. There is no evidence that your Information was individually accessed or misused; nevertheless, we are providing this notification out of an abundance of caution.

What Information Was Involved?

We determined that the following types of Information including your name may have been impacted: address; date of birth; driver’s license number or other government issued identification; facial photograph; account number in combination with any required security code, access code, or password; health insurance Information; medical Information; passport number; Social Security Number; and student identification number. Note that this describes general categories of Information involved in this Incident, and it likely includes categories that are not relevant to you.

What We Are Doing.

Upon becoming aware of the Incident, we immediately implemented measures to further improve the security of our systems and practices. We worked with a leading privacy and security firm to aid in our investigation and response, and we are reporting this Incident to relevant government agencies.

You must contact each of the credit reporting agencies directly to obtain such additional report(s).

Fraud Alert. You may place a fraud alert in your file by calling one of the three nationwide credit reporting agencies above. A fraud alert tells creditors to follow certain procedures, including contacting you before they open any new accounts or change your existing accounts. For that reason, placing a fraud alert can protect you, but also may delay you when you seek to obtain credit.

Security Freeze. You may obtain a security freeze on your credit report, free of charge, to protect your privacy and ensure that credit is not granted in your name without your knowledge. You may also submit a declaration of removal to remove information placed in your credit report as a result of being a victim of identity theft. You have a right to place a security freeze on your credit report, free of charge, or submit a declaration of removal pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting and Identity Security Act.

The security freeze will prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing any information in your credit report without your express authorization or approval. The security freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. When you place a security freeze on your credit report, you will be provided with a personal identification number, password, or similar device to use if you choose to remove the freeze on your credit report or to temporarily authorize the release of your credit report to a specific party or parties or for a specific period of time after the freeze is in place.

To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may be able to use an online process, an automated telephone line, or a written request to any of the three credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for him/her as well): (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past five years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.

For New Mexico residents: You may obtain a security freeze on your credit report to protect your privacy and ensure that credit is not granted in your name without your knowledge. You may submit a declaration of removal to remove information placed in your credit report as a result of being a victim of identity theft. You have a right to place a security freeze on your credit report or submit a declaration of removal pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting and Identity Security Act.
