Nature of the Data Event

On or about December 29, 2022, Guidecraft became aware of suspicious activity relating to its e-commerce website, www.guidecraft.com. Guidecraft quickly launched an investigation, with the assistance of third-party computer forensic specialists, to determine the nature and scope of the activity and what information may have been affected. The investigation determined that unauthorized code was entered into the website, which may have allowed an unknown actor to obtain information entered by customers on the checkout page of the website between September 21, 2021 and December 30, 2022. Once Guidecraft became aware of the suspicious activity, Guidecraft quickly worked to secure the website.

During the investigation, Guidecraft’s website host inadvertently reinstalled a backup containing a copy of the unauthorized code when Guidecraft requested a copy of the backup for forensic review. This resulted the potential exposure of additional purchases made with credit/debit cards from February 7 to February 8, 2023.

Upon confirming the window of exposure, Guidecraft then worked to confirm the address information for impacted individuals and businesses. This review was recently concluded on February 23, 2023.

The information that could have been subject to unauthorized access includes name and credit and debit card information in combination with a security code.

Notice to Maine Residents

On or about March 23, 2023, Guidecraft provided written notice of this incident to fifty six (56) Maine residents. Written notice is being provided in substantially the same form as the letter attached here as Exhibit A.

Other Steps Taken and To Be Taken

Upon discovering the event, Guidecraft moved quickly to investigate and respond to the incident, assess the security of Guidecraft systems, and identify potentially affected individuals. Guidecraft is also working to implement additional safeguards and training to its employees.

Additionally, Guidecraft is providing impacted individuals with guidance on how to better protect against identity theft and fraud, including advising individuals to report any suspected incidents of identity theft or fraud to their credit card company and/or bank. This notice provides information about the incident, our response, and resources available to you to help protect your information from possible misuse, should you feel it is necessary to do so.

What Happened. On or about December 29, 2022, Guidecraft became aware of suspicious activity relating to our e-commerce website, www.guidecraft.com. We quickly launched an investigation, with the assistance of third-party computer forensic specialists, to determine the nature and scope of the activity and what information may have been affected.

What Information Was Involved. The investigation determined that unauthorized code was entered into our website, which may have allowed an unknown actor to obtain information entered by customers on the checkout page of our website between September 21, 2021 and December 30, 2022. Additionally, due to a vendor error, credit card purchases from February 7 to February 8, 2023 were also potentially exposed.

Through our review, which we completed on February 23, 2023, we determined that you made a credit/debit card transaction during the relevant timeframe. As such, the following types of your information may have been impacted: name, billing and/or shipping address, and credit or debit card number.

What We Are Doing. The confidentiality, privacy, and security of information in our care are among our highest priorities, and we take this incident very seriously. Upon becoming aware of this potential event, we immediately launched an investigation and worked to secure our website. We then worked to confirm the address information for potentially impacted individuals in order to provide this notice. We also reviewed our security policies and enhanced procedures to reduce the risk of similar future events.

What You Can Do. We encourage you to remain vigilant against incidents of identity theft and fraud by reviewing your account statements and monitoring your free credit reports for suspicious activity and to detect errors. You should report any suspicious charges on your credit or debit card to the bank that issued the card or the card company, as appropriate. Please also review the enclosed Steps You Can Take to Help Protect Your Information, which contains information on what you can do to safeguard against possible misuse of your information should feel it is appropriate to do so.

Steps You Can Take to Help Protect Personal Information

Monitor Your Accounts

Under U.S. law, a consumer is entitled to one free credit report annually from each of the three major credit reporting bureaus, Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. To order your free credit report, visit www.annualcreditreport.com or call, toll-free, 1-877-322-8228. You may also directly contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below to request a free copy of your credit report.

Consumers have the right to place an initial or extended “fraud alert” on a credit file at no cost. An initial fraud alert is a 1-year alert that is placed on a consumer’s credit file. Upon seeing a fraud alert display on a consumer’s credit file, a business is required to take steps to verify the consumer’s identity before extending new credit. If you are a victim of identity theft, you are entitled to an extended fraud alert, which is a fraud alert lasting seven years. Should you wish to place a fraud alert, please contact any one of the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below.

As an alternative to a fraud alert, consumers have the right to place a “credit freeze” on a credit report, which will prohibit a credit bureau from releasing information in the credit report without the consumer’s express authorization. The credit freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a credit freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or any other account involving the extension of credit. Pursuant to federal law, you cannot be charged to place or lift a credit freeze on your credit report. To request a credit freeze, you will need to provide the following information:

1. Full name (including middle initial as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.);
2. Social Security number;
3. Date of birth;
4. Addresses for the prior two to five years;
5. Proof of current address, such as a current utility bill or telephone bill;
6. A legible photocopy of a government-issued identification card (state driver’s license or ID card, etc.); and
7. A copy of either the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law enforcement agency concerning identity theft if you are a victim of identity theft.

Should you wish to place a credit freeze, please contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below:
