Dear [First Name],

Notification of Security Incident

G&J Pepsi-Cola Bottlers, Inc. (“G&J”, “we” or “our”) takes the security and protection of your personal information seriously. Through the investigation of a security incident, unauthorized access or viewing of your personal information may have occurred. At this time, we have no evidence that your personal information has been accessed, viewed, or stolen. However, in an abundance of caution, we are notifying you so that you can better protect yourself as the unauthorized access to your personal information was possible based on the nature of the security incident and our investigation.

What Happened

On September 9, 2021, we first learned of a cyberattack that partially disrupted G&J information systems (the “Incident”). Based on our investigation, we have learned that the cyberattack was made possible by use of malicious software on our systems. Based on our incident response procedures, we interrupted a more significant attempt to shut down our systems and demand a ransom from the company. Since learning about the Incident, we worked with a third-party forensics firm to secure all systems, remediate any risks, and securely and methodically bring our systems back online. In addition to confirming the interference and disruption of some G&J information systems, on October 4, 2021, our investigation also determined that the Incident may have resulted in the unauthorized access or viewing of your personal information on some G&J file systems. Since then, we have been analyzing impacted files to understand what personal information may be at risk and working to provide notice to individuals and authorities, as applicable.

What Information Was Involved

At this time, we cannot determine whether your personal information was impacted due to the Incident. Based on our investigation to date, we can only indicate the following types of personal information for G&J employees, dependents and beneficiaries that were potentially accessed or viewed.

First and last name	Social Security number	Date of birth

What We Did and What We Are Doing

Upon learning of the Incident, we engaged a third-party forensic investigation firm to identify the scope of the Incident and to assist us with securing our systems and data. We have carefully brought our systems back online and we continue to closely monitor our network and information systems for unusual activity. Additionally, we are continuing our investigation and due diligence, including engaging additional resources and experts and evaluating the extent of risk to personal information. We will continue to implement the recommendations from the third-party forensics firm to further assist G&J in developing its administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to further improve G&J security across the company.

What You Can Do

While we have received no reports or indication of such activity, the risks related to the unauthorized use of a Social Security number may include identity theft, financial fraud, and tax fraud. Please be vigilant about monitoring your personally identifiable information, particularly your credit report information and financial accounts, to protect against fraudulent activity. Please also pay attention when submitting tax returns to protect against possible fraudulent submissions made on your behalf.

Complimentary Credit Monitoring and Call Center. To assist you in this effort, we have provided complimentary credit monitoring and identity theft prevention services through Experian. If you are concerned about identity theft, please sign up for the complimentary monitoring and protection services by following the instructions provided below from Experian. The credit monitoring information provided below is intended for individuals over the age of eighteen (18). If the individual identified in this letter is under the age of eighteen (18), please contact Experian via the toll free number detailed below. If you need additional information, we have established a call center to answer any questions you might have. To access the call center at no charge, please use the following phone number: [CALL CENTER].

If you are concerned about identity theft, you may also contact local law enforcement and file a police report. You can contact your state’s Attorney General, as well as the Federal Trade Commission or one of the credit bureaus for more information about how to protect your identity.

For More Information

If you are concerned about identity theft, you can place an identity theft/fraud alert, get credit freeze information for your state, or order a free credit report by calling any of the following credit reporting agencies at one of the phone numbers listed below or by visiting their websites.

Credit Reports. You can request credit reports from all three credit bureaus be sent to you free of charge. Even if you do not find any suspicious activity on your initial credit reports, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) recommends that you check your credit reports periodically. Thieves may hold stolen information to use at different times. Checking your credit reports periodically can help you spot problems and address them quickly.

Fraud Alerts. You can place a fraud alert with the credit bureaus free of charge. A fraud alert tells creditors to contact you before they open any new accounts or change your existing accounts. Contact any one of the three major credit bureaus. As soon as one credit bureau confirms your fraud alert, the others are notified to place fraud alerts. The initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for one year. You can renew it after one year. You may also place an extended fraud alert, which lasts up to seven years unless you cancel it sooner. Additionally, you can provide a phone number instructing lenders to contact you if someone applies for credit in your name, and you will get an instant alert to potential fraud.

Security Freeze. Under state law, a security freeze (or a credit freeze) prohibits a credit-reporting agency from releasing any information from a consumer’s credit report without written authorization. There is no fee associated with freezing or thawing your credit. The process of freezing your credit takes only a few minutes. You must contact each credit bureau individually to freeze your credit with each agency. You may need to provide the following information:

Your full name	Date of Birth	Social Security number	Mobile number
Postal address	Email address	Other information the Credit Reporting Agency may require.

The credit-reporting agencies have one business day after your request to place a security freeze if made by telephone or secure electronic means. If the request is made by mail, the credit-reporting agencies have three business days. The credit agencies must also send written confirmation to you within five business days.

To lift the security freeze, in order to allow a specific entity or individual access to your credit report, you must apply online, call, or send a written request to the credit-reporting agencies by mail. When you contact a credit bureau to lift the security freeze, you will need to include proper identification (name, address, and Social Security number) and the PIN number or password that was provided to you (if provided) when you placed the security freeze as well as the identities of those entities or individuals you would like to receive your credit report or the specific period of time you want the credit report available. If you request a credit thaw online or by phone, the credit bureaus are required by law to complete the request within one hour. If you request the thaw by regular mail, the credit bureaus have three business days after receiving your request to lift the security freeze for those identified entities or for the specified period of time.

The FTC provides more information about how to protect your identity at either <https://www.ftc.gov/> or <https://www.identitytheft.gov/>. You may also find additional information on any applicable rights under the Fair Credit Reporting Act. You can also contact the FTC by using the information below.
