Notice of Data Breach

Dear <<FirstName>><<MiddleName>><<LastName>>,

We are writing to tell you about a data security incident that has exposed some of your personal information. Princeton University takes the protection and proper use of your information very seriously. For this reason, we are contacting you directly to explain the circumstances of the exposure.

What happened?

On June 6, 2022, Princeton University's Office of Information Technology discovered that certain information about some former Princeton students was accessible in electronic files publicly available on a website operated by Princeton. The investigation into the incident suggests that this information was first made publicly available on April 28, 2020. Princeton took immediate action, including removing the information from public access and engaging a third party cybersecurity firm to investigate and assist in remediating the exposure. Based on the investigation, there was no evidence of unauthorized access to the files through Princeton's computing systems. However, it appears that the files were accessed by third parties through the public internet.

What information was involved?

The information involved personal information relating to purchases of computers through Princeton University's Student Computing Initiative, including your Social Security number [and date of birth].

What we are doing.

Upon discovery of the exposure, Princeton immediately ensured that the files at issue were made inaccessible to the public. Further, Princeton completed a scan of its systems to ensure that no additional files containing personally identifiable information were publicly available. Additionally, Princeton retained a third party cybersecurity firm to independently investigate the exposure and provide advice regarding remediation and prevention.

Although we do not know that your personal information was read, copied or downloaded by any unauthorized parties, we recommend that you take steps to protect your identity. To help you do so, Princeton has engaged the services of Kroll, a leading cybersecurity risk mitigation and response company, to provide identity monitoring for two years at Princeton's expense. Your identity monitoring services include Credit Monitoring, Web Watcher, Public Persona, Quick Cash Scan, $1 Million Identity Fraud Loss Reimbursement, Fraud Consultation, and Identity Theft Restoration.

Fraud Alerts. There are two types of fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least one year. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft and you have the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three national credit reporting agencies.

Security Freeze. You have the ability to place a security freeze, also known as a credit freeze, on your credit report free of charge.

A security freeze is intended to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may use an online process, an automated telephone line, or submit a written request to any of the three credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that, if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for him/her as well): (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past 5 years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.
