With power rates going up every year and prices doing the same, how would I ever be able to afford this?
Not to mention the cost of this and potential contamination to the environment when these get in a wreck and or burn.
This rule is not thought out especially on the “unforeseen consequences “ that will inevitably arise from it.
If it’s so good why would you need to mandate it?
California policies will destroy the “Maine the way life oughta be.”
When the batteries are bad how are they disposed of? If the answer is landfill then this is a raw deal for Maine.
Cleanliness is Absolutely something to strive for but this is not it.
