To all concerned,

The idea that government can mandate, force a person's buying options goes against our freemarket democracy and is another step towards totalitarian authority. First of all we do not have an adequate power grid system for all being forced to buy an EV. Second a majority of Maine's population couldn't even afford to purchase one. Third if you are all for supporting slavery or at the very least slave like working conditions as what is happening in Africa and other areas then by all means continue with your push for total consumer control.

Thank you for your time

John
